Government May Ration Soft Coal as Defense Move

Plan To Provide Fuel for Vital Industries Now Being Considered

Priorities System May Be Ordered; Southern Operators Continue To Remain Holdouts

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—Reports circulated in coal circles today that the government might ration existing supplies of soft coal to insure continued operation of industries vital to defense.

At the same time, officials were optimistic that at least some of the mines which shut down April 1 would reopen soon. President Roosevelt said at his press conference that he thought some might be operating again by Monday. He did not elaborate.

The government could ration coal by establishing a priorities system such as has been done already for aluminum and other materials. The talk of coal rationing was heard as mounting reports of fuel shortages brought expressions of concern from war department officials that manufacture of steel for defense purposes might be curtailed sharply.

May Store Huge Supplies

It was also reported that the Office of Production Management was considering a proposal for storage of huge coal supplies—once mining has resumed—to insure against a future shortage.

Meanwhile, southern coal operators stood firm on their demands to the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.) for recognition of their five-state area as wholly separate from northern fields in negotiation of wage contracts.

They have called for continuation of a wage differential of forty cents a day in their favor. The U. M. W. has sought equalization of wage rates in both fields, asking $7 a day compared with the previous scale of $6 in the north and $5.60 in the south.

Operators of the southern mines also have asked John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W. to shift the scene of contract negotiations to Washington and leave behind in New York all representatives of northern operators. In a telegram, they asked Lewis today to say definitely whether he would come to Washington and bargain with them as an organized group.

Looks To U. S. Officials

Word came from a high official of the union—Van Bittner, president of district 17, southern West Virginia—that the union "hoped" federal officials would "order" the southern operators to return to the New York negotiations.

Fort Meade Units To Be "At Home" To Greet Friends

Days Assigned When All Members Will Be Kept in Camp

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., April 18. (AP)—Twenty-ninth division headquarters today announced the regimental "at home" schedule under which the ten regiments and special troops of the division will remain in camp on coming week-ends to entertain relatives and friends.

Baltimore's One Hundred Seventy-fifth infantry, under the command of Col. Harry C. Ruhl, will be the first unit to stay in camp in fact for a week-end and many relatives and friends are expected to be guests in the regimental area tomorrow afternoon and Sunday.

The weekly order in which other regiments will be "at home" in camp follows:

One Hundred Sixteenth infantry, Virginia, week-end of April 26-27. One Hundred Seventy-sixth field artillery, Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3-4. One Hundred Twenty-first engineers, and the division's special troops, the former from the District (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Hitler, 52 Today, Will Study Maps With Generals

Fuehrer Will Be Busy in Unknown Field Headquarters, Friend Says

BERLIN, April 18. (AP)—Adolf Hitler will spend his fifty-second birthday Sunday, as in recent days, at military headquarters poring over maps with his generals and following the progress of the German armies.

This statement from one of the fuhrer's intimates, Press Chief Dr. Otto Dietrich, disclosed for the first time since the outbreak of the Balkan hostilities that Hitler was in the field; exactly where of course was not divulged.

Hitler was described as in vigorous health for his "Napoleonic enterprises."

"Business" as Usual

On his birthday, as every other day, Dietrich's statement continued, "he will be at chart table with his generals following hour by hour the march of his armies, painstakingly examining every movement of the enemy and meeting them with quick, often tremendously bold decisions."

"From early morning until late night, there constantly stream into his quarters diplomatic and military reports from all the world. According to the weight of their importance he incorporates them into the dynamics of his creative planning and cut of an all-inclusive survey of events he builds his opinions make his decisions and converts them into orders."

With Hitler in the field, the people in Germany were requested by Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels to display the swastika Sunday in observance of their fuhrer's birthday.

Only Public Observance

This was apparently the only public manifestation planned for the anniversary which in peace years was marked by gigantic parades on Unter Den Linden, Berlin's main thoroughfare.

Workmen now are repairing damages caused by RAF bombing attacks along the street.

Dietrich recalled that Hitler spent his last birthday in Berlin "crowded with fresh laurels of victory in Norway and occupied with bold and strategic planning as he stood on the threshold of the crushing campaign in the west."

D.A.R. Urges Aid to Britain, but Is Opposed to "Union Now" Moves

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution in a two-fold resolution today endorsed "all material aid to Britain and other countries fighting for democratic principles" but opposed "all proposals for world political union, such as the movement known as 'Union Now'."

"Union now" is a movement led by Clarence Streit, author, who has been urging English-speaking peoples to unite.

Rome Sees Possibility of Suicide in Demise of Army Commander

ATHENS, April 19. (AP)—(Saturday)—King George of Greece named Kostas Kotzias, former military governor of Athens, to form a new government to carry on the war against the Axis after the sudden death of Premier Alexandros Korizis, the Athens news agency said today.

ATHENS, April 19. (AP)—The sudden death of Alexandros Korizis, for less than three months premier of Greece, was announced late tonight in broadcasts from the Athens radio station.

A short time later, a proclamation by Christos Cavrakos said he had assumed the duties of supreme military governor, on orders of the war ministry.

He urged calm and discipline among the people and added: "Assembly of groups is absolutely forbidden. Anyone infringing on this order will be court-martialed."

(NBC heard the Athens radio say that Korizis died suddenly at 4 p. m. Greek time—9 a. m. EST.—Friday).

"Thus, in three months," the announcer was quoted as saying, "two prime ministers have fallen while performing their duty after having consecrated their whole strength to the service of their country."

Korizis, 53, a banker, succeeded his intimate friend, Premier George Metaxas immediately upon the death of the latter on January 29.

Metaxas himself designated Korizis, who was governor of the Bank of Greece, as his successor.

King George II was reported to be calling a meeting of the cabinet to designate a new premier, the announcer said.

Hint of Suicide

Heard in Rome

ROME, April 19. (Saturday)—(AP)—Stefani, Italian news agency, in a dispatch from Istanbul, Turkey, hinted early today that the death of the Greek Premier Alexandros Korizis was "not due to natural causes."

"While some persons held death was due to heartbreak over reversals in Greece, many others advanced the hypothesis death was not due to natural causes," the agency said.

Failure of the Athens radio to announce the cause of the premier's death, the agency said, renders "more founded the hypothesis Korizis was conscious his most grave fault was dragging his country to ruin and voluntarily avoided with death the consequences of his political folly."

O'Connor Announces Twelfth Draft Call

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 18. (AP)—Governor O'Connor announced tonight 567 Maryland men would be inducted into military service in the twelfth call for a period from May 11 to 20.

Local draft boards will be instructed to send a total of 396 white men and 171 colored to the Baltimore induction station, he said.

O'Connor added that ninety-nine white men and forty-three negroes would be inducted May 12, 13 and 14 and that ninety-nine white men and forty-two negroes would be inducted May 15.

A breakdown of the latest quota for the May period, showing the number of men each local board must furnish, was not available.

Attack on Berlin By RAF Sets Many Buildings Ablaze

LONDON, April 18. (AP)—The war's heaviest raid on Berlin, pressed home with more and bigger bombs and bombers than ever before, left the German capital checkered with flames early today, the British radio station said.

All British officialdom insisted the gigantic onslaught was not in reprisal for the battering the Germans gave London Wednesday night.

Instead, it was described as part of the regular RAF policy of striking at German-Italian military and industrial strength—a policy to be continued and expanded regardless of attacks on Britain.

At the same time, Prime Minister Churchill warned the world that captured British bombs are to be dropped on Vatican City by massing Italian airmen the first time the RAF raids Rome.

Alleges Nazi Trick

This warning of what was called a "characteristic trick" was contained in a statement issued at No. 10 Downing street—Churchill's official residence—that Rome will be attacked systematically if the Axis molests either Athens or Cairo.

War's Heaviest Raid Does Great Damage to German Capital

LONDON, April 18. (AP)—The war's heaviest raid on Berlin, pressed home with more and bigger bombs and bombers than ever before, left the German capital checkered with flames early today, the British radio station said.

All British officialdom insisted the gigantic onslaught was not in reprisal for the battering the Germans gave London Wednesday night.

Instead, it was described as part of the regular RAF policy of striking at German-Italian military and industrial strength—a policy to be continued and expanded regardless of attacks on Britain.

At the same time, Prime Minister Churchill warned the world that captured British bombs are to be dropped on Vatican City by massing Italian airmen the first time the RAF raids Rome.

Alleges Nazi Trick

This warning of what was called a "characteristic trick" was contained in a statement issued at No. 10 Downing street—Churchill's official residence—that Rome will be attacked systematically if the Axis molests either Athens or Cairo.

The British themselves will take "the greatest care" not to bomb Vatican City, center of the Catholic world, said the announcement, but once the bombardment of adjoining Rome is begun "it will continue as convenient to the end of the war."

It was recalled that when Italy entered the war, Alfred Duff Cooper, now British minister of information, declared Premier Mussolini "will increase the number of ruins for which Italy has long been famous."

Athens and Cairo, which the British thus seek to save from airborne devastation, are, respectively, the repository of the ancient culture of Greece and a shrine-filled (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Italian Eleventh Army Is Reported Nearing Ioannina

Recapture of Porto Edda Imminent, Rome Dispatch Says

ROME, April 18. (AP)—Dispatches from the Greek front said tonight the Italian eleventh army was decisively nearing Ioannina, capital of Epirus, and that the recapture of Porto Edda, Albania, was imminent.

A correspondent for Stefani, the Italian news agency, said the Greek armies were leaving behind "numerous prisoners and huge quantities of war materials of all kinds."

The Greeks were described as retreating in disorder, under Italian air attack and ground pursuit.

The Italians said they already were within sight of Porto Edda—once called Santi Quaranta but renamed for Premier Mussolini's daughter.

Other motorized divisions reported complete occupation of the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia, claiming it as Italy's war booty. Fascist divisions driving north and south met at Dubrovnik.

The Greeks still offered resistance, Italian correspondents reported, but the Fascist forces were trying to bottle them up by taking the Viosa river bridge at Perat, called the Greeks' sole route for retreat.

The Yugoslav collapse was not an armistice but a "submission," Italians said. They said "independence" would be accorded Croatia and Montenegro, the latter once a nation, the former a province in northern Yugoslavia.

Italy will get Dalmatia, these sources said, and Italy's allies (apparently Germany, Hungary, and Bulgaria) would take other bits along the fringe of the beaten nation.

La Tribuna's correspondent told of tired, dispirited Yugoslav officers and soldiers walking muddy miles down from the mountains to surrender.

Steel Production Slowed Down by Shortage of Coal

Youngstown Ohio Area Hardest Hit; Railroads Affected

DETROIT, April 18. (AP)—State police took up posts at the gates of the Ford Motor Company River Rouge plant late tonight upon reports of further trouble inside the property and a crowd gathered.

Observers reported seeing a number of men wearing insignia of the United Automobile Workers (U. A. W.) and that a union sound truck was broadcasting: "Don't go in the foundry. Your lives are in danger."

Steel production in the Youngstown, Ohio, area was slowed down yesterday (Friday) because of a fuel shortage due to the stoppage in soft coal mining, and New England factories were reported facing an immediate shut down in coal deliveries. In addition, two new England railroads reported their fuel situation was becoming critical.

In coal circles, there were reports that the government might ration existing supplies to assure continued operation of vital defense industries.

Meanwhile, negotiations by the CIO United Mine Workers for a new contract covering the entire Appalachian coal-producing area continued stalemated.

Southern mine operators, who walked out of New York contract conferences last week, exchanged telegrams with John L. Lewis, U. M. W. head, on their position, but it was not clear whether this would lead to a resumption of direct negotiations.

Want Wage Differential

Northern operators have agreed to the U. M. W.'s chief demand—a wage of $7 a day. Southern operators, however, objected to proposed elimination of a wage differential in their favor. They have been paying $5.60 a day compared to $6 in the north.

Bishop Refuses Willkie Demand For an Apology

Father Shaughnessy Sticks to Charge; Offers Record as Proof

SEATTLE, April 18. (AP)—The Most Rev. Gerald Shaughnessy, S. M., Roman Catholic Bishop of Seattle, issued a statement here today asserting Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican candidate "isn't the man he used to be, and in fact he never was."

It was part of the diminutive bearded churchman's response to a telegram from Willkie asking the bishop to apologize publicly for an Easter sermon critical of Willkie.

In his sermon, the Father flayed Willkie as having made campaign statements and pledges he later dismissed as "but campaign oratory."

He stated, in answer to Willkie's challenge today, that the candidate's words could be found on page 905 of the report of the Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings held February 11.

"And speaking of apology, Mr. Willkie," the statement added, "I believe that you owe one to your party, to those who voted for you and to the whole nation."

The published record of the hearings on the British Aid bill shows that on February 11 Senator Nye (R-Ore.) was questioning Willkie about statements Willkie made during the 1940 campaign.

On page 905 of part III of the record Nye quoted Willkie as having said that "on the basis of his (President Roosevelt's) past performances with pledges to the people, you may expect we will be at war by April, 1941, if he is elected."

"You ask me whether or not I said that?" Willkie asked.

"Do you still agree that might be the case?" Nye replied.

"It might be," Willkie said, "it was a bit of campaign oratory." At this point the record shows where was laughter in the hearing room.

Hillman and Biggers Ask Editors' Aid in Defense

OPM Officials Say Public Does Not Understand Urgency

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—The government's defense production chief, reporting that the arms program now totals $44,000,000,000 today called a "lack of public understanding of the magnitude and urgency" of the defense job a greater deterrent to its success than strikes.

John D. Biggers, production chief of the Office of Production Management, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that newspapers could help improve this "lack" of understanding, and that labor and industry must "cooperate wholeheartedly" if the job is to be done.

The $44,000,000,000 figure, he said, includes sums appropriated, authorized and proposed.

Hillman Seeks Unity

Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM and head of its labor division, also told the editors they could contribute to the program's success by informing the people of all the "stakes at issue" and laying less emphasis on differences so as to promote national unity.

Hillman said the industrial relations picture was "far more favorable" now than at any other time of equal industrial activity. Exclusive of the coal industry, he said, approximately 15,000 workers were now on strike on defense jobs.

"In the strikes which have occurred," he added, "surely we have no right to place the blame upon labor without informing ourselves as to the underlying reasons."

"When large profits are reported in the press, labor justly feels it is entitled to some fair share of them. When labor is denied various rights guaranteed to it by law, labor cannot be expected to sit by without protest."

The two-day editors' convention ended tonight with a banquet marked by off-the-record speeches by Lord Halifax, the British ambassador; Col. William J. Donovan, unofficial government observer abroad, and Laughlin Currie, a presidential assistant who returned a few weeks ago from a study of conditions in China.

Marvin New President

Earlier, the society elected Dwight Marvin, editor of the Troy (N.Y.) Record as its new president to succeed Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville Times. Other new officers: W. S. Glimore, editor of the Detroit News, second vice-president; John S. Night, president and editor, Detroit Free Press and publisher of the Miami (Fla.) Herald, and Akron (Ohio) Beacon Journal treasurer.

Re-elected were M. V. Atwood, Gannett newspapers, first vice-president, and N. R. Howard, editor of the Cleveland News, secretary. Five directors chosen were Jonathan Daniels, editor, Raleigh News and Observer; Roy A. Roberts, managing editor, Kansas City Star; Basil L. Walters, editor, Minneapolis Star Journal; Dwight Marvin, and E. S. Beck, assistant editor-in-chief, Chicago Tribune.

Berlin Reports Allies Resisting Bitterly in Eastern Greece Area

BERLIN, April 18. (AP)—Bitter fighting in the Mount Olympus area of eastern Greece led military observers to speculate tonight that the Germans have encountered an advance or buffer line of defense set up by the British and Greeks to stem the German southward tide.

This particular eastern front is roughly described here as stretching from Mount Olympus westward across Greece to the Pindus range, averaging about sixty miles north of the main British-Greek line, which is pictured here as extending

Roosevelt Wants U. S. To Realize Situation Abroad

Not Enough Public Interest, He Says; Barkley and Tobey Clash

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP)—President Roosevelt expressed the belief today that public awareness of the gravity of the situation abroad was increasing—although still inadequate—and, meanwhile, there were numerous developments elsewhere in the capital related to the defense drive.

In the Senate, Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, took Senator Tobey (R-N.H.) to task for charging that American destroyers have been assigned to convoy duty. Both Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, the chief of naval operations, had assured him, Barkley said, that the charges were unfounded.

From the war department came an announcement that the first contingent of troops had sailed to the new outpost at Bermuda. It was understood that artillery as well as infantry units were included.

Award Ship Contracts

The Maritime Commission awarded contracts for the construction of 184 cargo ships at a cost of $364,800,000, 112 of them standardized, emergency type ships of 10,000 tons, and the others 16,000-ton ships.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted in the Senate that the defense organization was "exceedingly inefficient," and added that the recent price-fixing orders were exactly like those Adolf Hitler can write."

The highway traffic advisory committee of the war department reported that plans were nearing completion for a national census of trucks and buses which would be available in a national emergency.

Masses of Shock Troops Repulsed In Bitter Fight, Athens Declares

All Enemy Pressure Repelled, Greek Statement Says; Situation for Allies Still Serious

ATHENS, April 19. (Saturday) (AP)—A shortened, sold British-Greek line across Macedonia is holding firm against assaults of almost incredible fury by masses of German shock troops, the Greeks announced early today.

From Mount Olympus on the east, through the central valley of the Aliakmon river, and on westward around Grevena, the new defenses repelled "all enemy pressure," the Greek command declared.

"On the Albanian front our movements on Albanian soil were carried out calmly," it stated.

It was in the west, that the British Imperial forces and the Greeks successfully made a forced withdrawal to bunch up their defenses.

The roads, which straggle down the mountains of Northern Greece, were thick with the traffic of the Allied armies as the British and the Greeks rectified their line for further resistance. This rectification, described in official British statements as a gradual withdrawal to a shorter line of defense, was, by military necessity, unexplained.

Allies' Situation Serious

But one thing was known: The Allied front lines are unbroken on the Allied right flank, where the Germans are flinging massed and formidably armed forces against the front bulwark by Mt. Olympus and the Pindus mountains.

Yet if Greece is saved by this valiant stand it will be a modern Thermopylae, for the defenders are greatly outnumbered.

At least ten divisions and a thousand warplanes are being thrown at the Allied right and center. They are meeting the most stubborn of hand-to-hand resistance, especially in the Kalabaka sector of the center.

Bodies Piled High

"On the left the German columns, ascending the cruel slopes four rows deep, seem inexhaustible. The slaughter among them is monumental and the bodies are piled high."

Some estimates place the German dead in Greece as high as 50,000. But still they come.

One British Hussar regiment, with a proud lineage, resisted to the last round in a past. A surviving officer told it this way:

"After a tank attack, the Germans sent their infantry up the hill four deep. We mowed down the first three rows, but we ran out of bullets when the fourth came."

Cooper Praises A. P. War Writers And Entire Staff

General Manager Says Story of Endurance Will Last Forever

NEW YORK, April 18. (AP)—Despite unprecedented difficulties, peril and hardship, correspondents of the Associated Press carried out their task of reporting 1940's world-shaking events "promptly, discerningly and without bias."

General Manager Kent Cooper, in his annual report made public today, said "the story of what they did and what they endured deserves to live as long as there are newspapers."

Putting the achievements of the service overseas, both in news and pictures, "at the forefront of the year's efforts," Cooper said that "war reporting is no longer a prize for swivel-chair journalists," and that "no tribute which the membership could possibly pay them would balance the sum of devoted and courageous conduct of these soldiers of the Associated Press."

Sales Tax Fails To Please F.D.R. As Revenue Idea Says He Does Not Care "Very Much" for Plan Suggested

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—Sharply conflicting views regarding the imposition of a general sales tax to help raise $3,500,000 of new revenue developed in the House Ways and Means committee today, after President Roosevelt had indicated opposition to such a levy.

At his press conference, the chief executive was asked about his attitude toward a sales tax and replied that it was the same as always.

"That means that you do not care for it?" he was asked.

Not very much, Mr. Roosevelt replied.

A few members of the committee took the position, however, that inasmuch as many excise taxes now in force are sales taxes, there was no reason why a general impost of that character should not be employed in the current emergency.

Many Oppose Sales Tax

Representative Dingell (D-Mich.) expressed the viewpoint of numerous legislators when he characterized the sales tax as inequitable and unfair in that it would impose an "undue share" of the burden on "the little fellows."

Representative Disney (D-Okla.) asserted, on the other hand, that the existing federal gasoline tax was actually a sales tax, as was the tax on theater admissions. Many states already have sales taxes, Disney added.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) said the committee would meet Monday in closed session, probably with some representatives of the treasury department, to make a preliminary canvass of the situation.

Says Long Task

The North Carolinian, who frequently has voiced his opposition to a sales tax, declined to discuss possible methods of raising the new revenues. He forecast that the committee had a long hard task ahead of it.

"If we complete the job in two months in both the House and Senate, we'll be doing remarkably well," he said.

President Roosevelt told his press conference he had not the faintest idea of how new revenues ought to be raised. That, he said, is for the determination of the House committee.

Berlin Reports

ment had been captured on the Greek front. Many prisoners, the report said, were New Zealanders and Australians with whom the Germans came to grips in northern Thessaly. The booty was said to have included twenty-five heavy guns and twelve British armored cars.

Surrender of the remnants of the chopped-up Yugoslav army, effective at noon today, was acclaimed here as another milestone on Germany's march to victory, releasing "more men, equipment and brilliant leadership" for the war in Greece.

Watch American Reaction

American reaction to the Yugoslav surrender was being carefully studied. The German press termed it the "failure of America's first attempt at direct intervention."

Dienst Aus Deutschland, a well-placed commentary service, said it detected a "thoughtful attitude" in some American quarters, but said Germany was not counting on any important change in the United States foreign policy.

Authorized quarters said Germany had named a minister to the new independent state of Croatia. Indicating that the new Zagreb government would enjoy political autonomy similar to Slovakia, disposition of the remainder of crushed Yugoslavia probably will await the outcome of the fight in Greece. There yet was no clue to the whereabouts of young King Peter.

German dead in the Yugoslav campaign, it was predicted here, "will be counted in the hundreds," emphasizing that the victory was "won almost without bloodshed."

Semi-official sources intimated that there now would be a "brief but careful" period of preparation for the second phase of the Balkan campaign. The Serbs did such a thorough job of crippling their rail system that it is doubtful the country will be of much value as a military route into Greece.

$700 in Currency Hunted in Sewer

BALTIMORE, April 18 (AP)—If there's $700 worth of brand new United States currency hidden in a Baltimore sewer, secret service agents, police and street cleaners haven't been able to find it yet.

Search for the money was begun after the secret service disclosed in Washington that a negro employ of the treasury had taken $1,080 worth of new currency.

The employee, Baldwin K. Alexander, 38, charged with "stealing government securities," was brought here to aid in searching a sewer where $700 worth of the unfinished bills was reported to have been hidden.

Secret service agents, police and two street cleaners searched the sewer at Charles and Eager streets, but the agents announced tonight no notes had been found. They said the search would be resumed tomorrow.

He was given two hours daily to get acquainted with the boy, pending final hearings on May 7.

Bayonet Battle Raging in Africa With Fleet and RAF Backing Army

CAIRO, Egypt, April 18 (AP)—Fierce but apparently still indecisive hand-to-hand bayonet and mechanized fighting raged on along the North African front today among stalled Axis mechanized units and British Imperial forces, supported by guns of the British Mediterranean fleet and planes of the RAF.

Middle east headquarters here announced a heavy toll was inflicted on men and machines of the Axis force at Tobruk, Libyan port 80 miles from the Egyptian border, and at the hotly contested border post of Salum, just inside Egypt.

More Prisoners Taken

Seventy seven more prisoners—including five officers—were reported captured by the British and marched to the rear to join some 1,500 others previously taken in the five days of attacks and counterattacks at these two points.

Backing up the land operations were units of the British Mediterranean fleet which kept up a bombardment, started two days ago, against German and Italian positions on the escarpment road west of Salum.

Tons of shells were fired into the Axis ranks, and were declared to have inflicted heavy casualties on long transport columns trying to move along the coastal road Musolini built.

The British and Australian air forces teamed up to harass the Germans and Italians, bombing and strafing their troop concentrations, airports and ammunition dumps as far west as Derna.

Advance in East Africa

On the East African front, the British command announced Imperial troops were advancing at a quickened tempo from Addis Ababa, captured capital of Ethiopia. A General Graziosi was announced among a new batch of Fascist prisoners. The British said his own men had left him for dead.

(The Italian Who's Who lists a General Eugenio Graziosi who is identified as an African corps commander. He is a veteran of the Italian African campaign of 1896, the Italian-Turkish war of 1911-12 and the World War.)

Halifax Discusses Military Situation

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, discussed the military situation in North Africa with Secretary Hull today and later expressed the opinion that this was more important now than the Balkan fighting.

Halifax told reporters that the situation in the Balkans was extremely serious but that he believed the British had "stabilized" Axis advances in North Africa.

Asked whether there was any immediate fear that the United States could give now in North Africa, the Ambassador said this country already had contributed a measure of assistance there by reopening the Red Sea to American shipping.

Despite Axis successes in the Balkans and North Africa, Lord Halifax declared that the Atlantic ocean remained the decisive theater of the war.

The D.A.R. also recommended that manufacturers of American flags be urged to include a copy of the flag code with each flag sold.

Waiter Says He Is German Spy

Bruno Valenski Held at Riverhead; Consul Denies Charge

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., April 18 (AP)—A statement attributed to Bruno Johannes Valenski, 31, a Central Islip waiter arrested on a robbery charge, that he was a Nazi spy in this country brought blank denials today from the German consul general in New York City.

Sheriff Jacob S. Dreyer, of Suffolk county, said that in a twelve-page statement Valenski detailed the "Nazi espionage and sabotage set-up in the United States." Dr. Hans Borchers, German consul general declared he had never heard of the man, but later said a file had been found in the consulate office showing that Valenski had twice visited the consulate seeking aid as an unemployed seaman.

"If he told us he was a member of the Gestapo, we would have thrown him out of the office," Borchers said. "This consulate is an official agency. We have nothing to do with the Gestapo or any secret organization. He told us nothing like that."

George Foster, chief of the Sheriff's Bureau of Identification, quoted Valenski as saying he had been sent by German officials to the Panama Canal to take pictures of fortifications but that he got "cold feet" and deserted.

Steel Production

Lewis has declined to send any of the 400,000 soft coal miners back to their jobs until contracts are secured covering all. They have been idle since April 1 when their work contract expired.

Dispatches from Youngstown said the fuel shortage had caused the Sharon Steel Corporation to bank one blast furnace and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation to "blow out" one, taking it out of production.

Shipping circles in Boston indicated that shipments of coal to New England industrial plants by boat would halt this week-end, and both the Boston and Maine and the Maine Central Railroads said they might have to curtail some operations unless soft coal mining was resumed within a week. Fuel on hand was said to be sufficient to operate until May 1.

"No Serious Effects"—FDR

At a forenoon press conference—held prior to these reports—President Roosevelt said he had been informed that the coal shut down had not seriously affected the defense program.

In a general discussion of the coal situation, the chief executive remarked that freight rates discriminated against the south in many respects. He added that the Interstate Commerce Commission was looking into the question, but that action by it would take a long time.

Southern operators, in demanding a wage differential, argued that because of disadvantageous freight rates they could not compete with northern mines, unless their wages were lower.

Harvester Raises Wages

Aside from the coal situation, major labor developments included an announcement by the International Harvester Company that it was raising wages of 42,000 employees by five cents an hour. Minimum wages now range from 55 to 62½ cents an hour in various plants.

The CIO Farm Equipment Workers Organizing Committee has been seeking an increase of ten cents an hour in eight International Harvester factories. It hailed the five-cent increase as a victory and announced it would press for "further wage adjustments."

Federal conciliators were endeavoring to avert the strike threatened by the CIO United Automobile Workers in General Motors Corporation plant next week, but their progress was not made known. The UAW is asking wage increases. A strike in the sixty-one plants would affect 160,000 workers.

General Situation Better

During the day, a representative of the Office of Production Management indicated general satisfaction with the labor situation. John D. Biggers, OPM production chief, declared that "lack of public understanding of the magnitude and urgency" of the defense job was the chief impediment—not strikes—to getting the work done.

Tension still existing at the Ford Motor Company, Detroit, where a CIO-UAW strike ended last week was attested by a series of fights in which three persons suffered minor injuries. S.A.'s police said a "false rumor" that pickets were to be thrown around the River Rouge plant caused some day workers to remain in the plant throughout the night and led to the disturbances.

Reason for Withdrawal

The Allied withdrawal was undertaken to prevent the British on the east from being cut off from behind, due to the tremendous pressure on the west and center.

Greeks, weary from six months of war, have fought valiantly in these latter sectors with the most inadequate of equipment, yet the Germans have made serious inroads, south of Grevena on the center and in the Albanian frontier sector on the west.

The retreat from Albania was a bitter blow for Greece's peasant soldiers, for ridges and mountains and villages there had been won with the blood of their comrades from the Italian invaders.

The vast withdrawal behind the front is orderly, despite the terrific congestion in the narrow mountain roads where mulecarts, armored cars and herds of cattle are funneled from the north.

In Athens the feeling persisted that the situation is not hopeless. The city had its first air raid alarm in two days, but the all-clear sounded within ten minutes.

Alexander Glass Dead

LAKE WALES, Fla., April 18 (AP)—Alexander Glass, 81, retired steel executive of Wheeling, W. Va., died today at a hospital here after a long illness.

O'Connor Plans To Act on 200 Bills

Will Later Hold Hearings on Controversial Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 18 (AP)—Approximately 200 bills passed by the legislature will be placed before Governor O'Connor for final action Wednesday, and Thursday the chief executive will begin a series of hearings on controversial legislation.

The second group of measures ready for O'Connor's signature or veto includes a bill liberalizing the unemployment compensation laws in favor of unemployed workers. Benefits to the unemployed would be increased by about $2,200,000 under the measure.

Some of the controversial bills set down for a hearing are these: The anti-sabotage bill prescribing stiff penalties for interference with defense plants manufacturing articles for this country or for "friendly nations."

Giving Montgomery county a monopoly in the sale of beer within its borders.

Providing for the issuance of $800,000 in bonds for new school construction in Allegany county.

Strengthening the legal position of electric cooperatives in Maryland. Exempting Maryland automobile dealers from paying taxes on used motor vehicles taken in trade.

Prohibiting the operation of Baltimore taxicabs under the so-called "nut" or minimum booking system.

Plan To Provide

would "in no way affect the competitive relationship" between the northern and southern fields. He declared that under the Guffey act one-half of the three cents, which he said elimination of the differential would add to the cost of each ton of southern coal, would be added to minimum prices. In addition, he said, minimum rates for all competitive districts in the Appalachian field would be increased one and one-half cents a ton "thus keeping the competitive situation exactly on the same level as at present."

South Holding Out

Southern soft coal operators tonight replied to a United Mine Workers' (CIO) invitation to meet in New York tonight with a counter-invitation to meet with them "for the purposes of negotiations alone and in Washington."

The office of John L. Lewis, U.M.W.A. head, said a meeting called for tonight there would not be held.

Lewis received the following telegram from L. Eberole Gaines, chairman of the Southern Coal Operators Wage Conference:

"After dissolution of the Appalachian Joint Conference, we immediately set up offices in Washington and so advised you. We did this because Washington is the seat of our government and also because it is the location of offices of our U.M.W.A. representatives of our employees, and therefore our negotiations could be carried on more expeditiously here than anywhere else."

"The situation is charged with such great and far-reaching public interest that our government must at all times be kept fully advised."

"We therefore strongly urge that our negotiations be carried on here."

"We have asked and still are asking that our case be certified to the National Defense Board, and this is a further strong reason for meeting here."

"Please answer definitely whether your organization will meet our organization for the purposes of negotiations alone and in Washington."

Lewis's reply was not immediately forthcoming.

Yesterday the operators agreed to meet with Lewis if discussions could be based on their offer to increase wages eleven per cent. The union replied it would resume negotiations in New York "without stipulations or without prior commitments."

The southern operators said the only stipulation was that the union negotiate with the Southern operators alone. Lewis agreed to this.

Tighten Up on Draft

And, yielding to the wishes of the army, the Senate military committee unanimously tabled legislation to give a deferred draft status to medical and dental students, hospital internes and residents and teachers of medicine and dentistry. Leading medical organizations had supported the measure.

Mr. Roosevelt's statements on the extent to which America is aware of the danger of the situation abroad were made in response to press conference questions. American, he said, could be made increasingly alert through the exercise of their general intelligence and mental processes, through cracker barrel conversations and for the benefit of the newsmen, he added through national press club conversations.

American Planes Reach Singapore

Naval Bombers Land To Join Other U. S.-Built Fighters

SINGAPORE, April 18 (AP)—Thundering in from across the Pacific, a flight of American-made naval patrol bombers landed here today to join U. S.-built Brewster Buffalo fighters and Lockheed Hudson bombers in defense of this vital British naval base and nearby seaplanes.

The ocean-going patrol bombers, similar to those the U. S. operators in Atlantic and Caribbean waters, arrived while mechanics were in the midst of assembling the first shipment of a large order of Brewster Buffalo fighters.

British, Australian and New Zealand test pilots took some of the Brewsters up within twenty-four hours after the parts were uncrated, so fast was the assembly pushed.

The patrol bombers apparently flew the Pan-American Airways route across the Pacific from San Diego, via Honolulu, Midway, Wake and Guam Islands, and Manila.

It was not announced whether they were built for the British or were "leased or loaned" by the U. S. navy.

The Associated Press has received advice that at least two of the patrol bombers, now at Singapore, were flown as far as Manila by the eminent airmen, Clyde Pangborn and Bernt Balchen. British pilots took over at Manila to take the bombers on to Singapore.

After the review there will be an exhibit of all weapons used by the infantry regiment. This will take place on the parade ground and soldiers will be assigned to explain the types of guns and their operation.

"None of this," he emphasized, "was permitted to lessen the intensive effort in the domestic news field in all specialized departments such as sports, finance, markets, science and aviation, appreciable progress was made."

Both he and Chief Deputy Game Warden Richard Norris said the fires had killed a great deal of small game, principally rabbits, bob white quail and other ground-nesting birds.

Besley said the most fires had been reported from Anne Arundel, Prince George's, Baltimore, Allegany and Montgomery counties.

As an indication of the rapidity with which some of the fires spread, he said a blaze near Perry Hill covered approximately 400 acres in about two hours.

Attack on Berlin

city sacred to the Moslem faith. Not Revenge Raid

The Downing street statement, denying that the Berlin raid was in revenge for London's hurts, was echoed by Herbert Morrison, minister of home security.

London sources asserted, however, "it will remind the Germans that the RAF still is able to reach Berlin."

"The air ministry left no doubt that the city was 'reached,' saying 'very substantial damage' was inflicted."

The ministry news service, recalling that the Germans admitted severe damage from the last big raid, April 9, said this one was bigger.

"Berlin was checkered with fires, for the most part in the heart of the capital," it said.

"There were many bombs, both more high explosives and more incendiaries than were dropped in the last raid on Berlin."

Loss of eight planes in the Berlin assault was acknowledged. Two German fighters were reported destroyed.

Morrison, speaking to London defense workers, said some new four-motored short-stirling bombers and a new type of "super-bomb" were used against Berlin.

"The Germans said only a few planes penetrated the Berlin defenses, but admitted a new hit on the Prussian state library, which was damaged in the April 9 raid."

tory of news-gathering and news photo coverage ever imposed more difficult responsibilities on any staff of editors, reporters and photographers.

"From so much meritorious service it would be difficult to select single instances for individual commendation," Cooper said. "The honor roll embraces the complete roster of the staff assigned to an embattled hemisphere. There are no weaklings among them."

"Taking inspiration from their devotion, the management is doing what it can to make their lot easier . . . at such hazardous stations as London, the personnel was increased numerically, to permit more frequent periods for relief."

"A further rotation of assignment was also established so that those who had been abroad longest might come home and be replaced for a time by volunteers from the domestic bureaus."

Cooper said that provision was made for strengthening facilities in Canada and Latin America in recognition of the growing community of interest in the Western Hemisphere.

"None of this," he emphasized, "was permitted to lessen the intensive effort in the domestic news field in all specialized departments such as sports, finance, markets, science and aviation, appreciable progress was made."

100 Forest Fires Sweep Maryland's Woodland Areas

State Forester Besley Expects Number To Increase

BALTIMORE, April 18 (AP)—More than 100 forest fires have swept over Maryland's woodlands this week, and prospects that the daily number can be materially reduced are slim, State Forester F. W. Besley said today.

Only a drenching rain would help the situation, which is more serious than at any time in the past several years, Besley said.

Efforts of the forestry department to fight the fires are handicapped by the fact that only fifteen full-time, salaried guards are available to attack blazes spotted from the state's thirty-two fire towers, the state forester said. He gave the normal guard requirement as forty-five, and said only lack of funds prevented the hiring of additional help.

2,000 Men Fight Fires

In addition to the guards, fire wardens throughout the state have gone to their help with crews of men. About 2,000 men have already been employed in bringing blazes under control, Besley added.

That figure does not include Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees, who are specially trained and equipped and have rendered invaluable service, Besley said.

While reports from the various districts were not all on file today, Besley estimated at least twenty-five fires broke throughout the state.

The largest blaze of the season was reported this week, when about 830 acres were swept in Montgomery county. The blaze broke out on Monday and was not finally brought under control until Wednesday. The state's spotting service does not extend into the county and the forestry department did not learn of the blaze until it had gained considerable headway, Besley said.

Small Game Killed

Both he and Chief Deputy Game Warden Richard Norris said the fires had killed a great deal of small game, principally rabbits, bob white quail and other ground-nesting birds.

Besley said the most fires had been reported from Anne Arundel, Prince George's, Baltimore, Allegany and Montgomery counties.

As an indication of the rapidity with which some of the fires spread, he said a blaze near Perry Hill covered approximately 400 acres in about two hours.

Parents Advised To Avoid Role Of Prosecutor

Children May Become Dishonest as Result of Well-Meant Methods

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
In the child of three or sixteen, you can't prevent deception and promote integrity and co-operation by holding court and playing prosecuting attorney. Keep your eyes open and protect your child from temptations he cannot withstand, but don't be a detective. Don't put your child on the witness stand forcing him to testify against himself, when you suspect that he has erred.

Like most other conscientious parents, those in the following instance have made their little child grow more dishonest and deceptive while they were trying their best to lead him to be honest and truthful. Parents want the child to learn early that deceit doesn't pay and that it brings unhappiness to the deceiver, and they don't get far if they center their attention on catching and punishing him when he lies. This will only make him worse. If a mother compels her child to confess one time, she has prepared him to lie more skillfully and steal more successfully the next.

The Letter

"Our five-year-old boy has been taking money out of his Dad's trousers. When he is caught he declares persistently that he found it, or that baby took it and he took it away from her to give to Dad. Yesterday I left him alone in the house for about ten minutes. When I came back he had taken two eggs out of the refrigerator and broken them against the house outside. . . . Today I asked him if he had broken the eggs and opened the refrigerator. He admitted reluctantly that he had. When I came in yesterday I saw the fresh eggs running down the house and asked where they had come from. He told me some boys came by and threw them there. . . ."

The Doctor's Advice

Parents need to build up a relationship with a child which will make him want to do right. Then he will have pride in doing right because he feels worthy and loved. Therefore, I advised the mother, who wrote the above, not to hold court with her child. She should put emphasis on keeping him from temptations to deceive and on building up his good traits and showing him more approval, love and affection when he does right, especially since he has a baby sister who, he might suppose, is loved more than he is. Dad, of course, should do likewise.

"To Punish or Not To Punish: When and How" is one of a series of pamphlets on the baby and young child I used to give to nursery school parents. A folder about these pamphlets may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-Fifth Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Do you advise giving the tot as early as two or three a hammer, soft wood and nails? Suppose the child endangers another child or the furniture with these things?
A. Supervise the youngster while he has them in a regular place, until he is able to be entrusted with them alone. Do likewise when at four or five he is given a saw and other tools.

Q. How may a parent locate a reputable psychiatrist, on suspecting mental illness in another member of the family?
A. By telephoning or writing the city or county Medical Association. Also the family doctor should be able to name a competent psychiatrist.

Your chance to defeat the opponents' contract—if the hand offers any kind of a close question—usually depends upon your not overlooking a solitary bet along the way, but doing the right thing at the exactly right moment. Much of bridge is like that—hinging on the time element which insists that some particular thing must be done at a particular time, not too soon, perhaps, or not too late.

When West led his heart K against this contract, opportunity banged upon Mr. East's door, but he refused to listen. He gave the high card signal of the heart 7 to urge his partner to repeat the suit, and that very moment his chance to beat the contract was gone. West naturally followed the instructions of the signal, which he reckoned was based on the fact that East had a four-card suit and counted on South to have another heart.

South gleefully ruffed the second heart and led his club K. After East took this, he led the diamond K. But it was too late. He was locking the stable after the departure of the horse. South's diamond A won that trick, and he dropped the last hostile club, then ran the spades, discarding the losing diamond on the last one.

East should have read that West had four hearts and South only a singleton. His play was to come up with the A over the K lead, then fire back his diamond K at once. That would have knocked out the diamond A. When he then won with his club A, he could have laid down the diamond Q to set the contract.

Sensitivity to Certain Foods Found Frequent Cause of Acne, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Acne or, in plain words, pimples, on the face in the young is a constant subject for speculation both by the patients and by dermatologists.

Many causes have been ascribed to it and many methods of treatment have been used from time to time. Perhaps no one form of treatment is ever going to be entirely successful. There persists, however, the idea that food may have something to do with it. The old style dermatologists prohibit their patients from eating candy and this is probably based on good experience.

A Canadian physician, Dr. Frank E. Cormia, of Montreal, Canada, has found that in about twenty per cent of his patients they are sensitive to some kind of food. It need not necessarily be candy, sugars, or fats, according to the old ideas. It simply means that the patients are sensitive to the certain kinds of food. When these foods are withdrawn from the diet, improvement occurs. He has had good results in seventy per cent of his patients.

G. C.: "Is there any harm in drinking a glass of tomato juice every morning before breakfast? If there is no harm, what good does it do? Is the juice of a lemon in a half a glass of water, with a half teaspoonful of soda, night and morning, a laxative?"
Answer—"Tomato juice is an excellent drink in any quantity. It contains vitamin C and probably other vitamin factors, and promotes digestion and increases appetite. The combination of lemon juice and soda is not necessarily a laxative."

A. B. S.: "In a recent article you stated that afternoon fever was an important symptom of tuberculosis. Please state approximately what temperature you mean—fraction of a degree, one degree, or more?"
Answer—"It is hard to make a definite rule about this, but I should say any temperature over 99 would be considered significant."

Republicans Can Do It

IN THESE DAYS of billions for defense and billions more for the Roosevelt deficits it is always refreshing to read of reduced budgets and taxes in Republican-administered states.

Under the leadership of Republican Governor James, Pennsylvania has reduced the two-year budget for 1941-1943 by ten per cent. The 1939-1941 total was $607,000,000, while the new budget is $543,000,000.

The new Republican administration in Indiana has enacted into law virtually every pledge of the 1940 state Republican platform. In doing so a new record for economy has been made, and the state treasury will have a favorable balance of more than $10,000,000 by 1943, in spite of the dire prediction of Democrats that the program would result in a huge deficit and in spite of the fifty per cent reduction in the gross income tax for retailers.

Republican South Dakota had a delightful "problem" on its hands this spring. Governor Bushfield's administration piled up a new surplus in 1940, and the question was, What to do about it? It was generally agreed that taxes should be cut but there were different opinions as to which taxes should be given the axe.

It was finally agreed to slash one cent from the sales tax, reduce the personal income tax, and turn over the remainder of the saving to various school districts. The $4,150,000 saved last year brings the total for the Bushfield administration since 1939 to $7,650,000. The annual state expenditure is approximately $29,000,000.

Most significant is the fact that these savings were not affected by eliminating any of the state's essential services, but by a business-like administration. Governor Bushfield has maintained that government, like private business, should live within its income.

Knowing When and How To Quit

SELF-KNOWLEDGE is a rare thing, and the courage to admit the results of self-searching is still rarer. But the Marx Brothers have both.

Once they were the Four Marx brothers. When they realized that there was no real place for a straight man in their delicious antics, Beppo dropped out. Since then the Marx Brothers (three) have been carrying on in the tradition made famous in their first film, "The Cocoanuts." Now engaged on their eleventh screen feature, they suddenly announce that this is the end. They will split, each going his own way. Groucho, as one would expect, is spokesman.

"When I say we're sick of the movies," Groucho explained, "I mean the people are about to get sick of us. By getting out now, we're just anticipating public demand, and by a very short margin. Our stuff simply is growing stale. So are we."

From a movie star, this is candor plus, but it's realistic. As Groucho explains, the old Marx routine isn't funny any more. When Harpo first began to choose blondes and honk an old automobile horn concealed in his pants, it was screaming. Groucho's lunatic chatter was in a class by itself. Chico could make a piano eat out of his hand. Sudden contrasts to the clowning, such as Harpo's magnificent harp playing, were emotionally effective.

But that's all there is, there isn't any more. The pitcher has gone to the well so often that there isn't any water left. The routine is too familiar, the formula threadbare. So Groucho bows out to do some playwriting. Harpo the Silent will talk again, and on the legitimate stage. Curtain for the Marx Brothers.

Anyway, they knew when to stop—and "by a very short margin at that." That's something. In fact, it's unique.

A Day for Shooting In American History

ON APRIL 19, 1775, just 166 years ago, the embattled farmers stood and fired the shot heard 'round the world. That happened at Concord, of course. At least, Emerson wrote the familiar lines in his hymn for the Concord monument dedication.

As a matter of fact, the first shot of the Revolutionary war was fired a little earlier in the same day at Lexington, where Major Pitcairn's redcoats drove back a little band of Minute Men who later joined the main force of their comrades at Concord. There the colonists repulsed the British troops and drove them back to Charlestown.

That is why April 19 is Patriots day in Massachusetts, and quite as big a day on the calendar as any other legal holiday. It is an odd coincidence that April 19 is the date on which "first shots" were fired in America's other two great wars. On April 19, 1861, exactly eighty-six years after the battle of Concord, the first shot of the Civil war took place in the streets of Baltimore when a crowd of Confederate sympathizers clashed with federal troops. The first shot of the Civil war had been fired at Fort Sumter a week earlier, but no one was hurt at Sumter.

On April 19, 1917, the first American shot of the World war was fired by the gun crew of a United States merchant ship at a German submarine. One year after that "first shot," American troops in France fought their first important battle with the Germans. That was at Selcheprey on April 19, 1918.

So April 19 is a date marked in red in the history of America's three principal wars. In two of the nation's smaller wars that date was narrowly missed. The first shot of the Spanish war was fired on April 22, 1898, four days after declaration of war, and the first battle of the Mexican war was fought on April 25, 1846.

For some reason the War of 1812 didn't get started until the summer of the year specified. But April has been the starting point of all of Uncle Sam's other major wars, and April 19 is probably the outstanding date among all of April's martial anniversaries.

Well, the nation has arrived at April 19, 1941, without getting into the current war. So perhaps Americans may pat themselves on the back for having beaten down superstition.

The Four New Types Of Government Bonds

WHEN the government begins, about May 1, pressing issues of government securities upon the public to finance the preparedness program, the design will be to pump money out of the public storehouses in a way that will best safeguard the nation against the evils of inflation and will give the people a sense of taking a direct part in the defense of the country.

To this end the Treasury department will offer four types of securities: (1) Defense Savings bonds, or "baby" bonds, sold at seventy-five per cent of face value, to mature in ten years and yield 2.9 per cent; (2) Series G, Savings bonds, sold at seventy-four per cent of face value, to mature in twelve years and yield 2.53 per cent; (3) Series G, Savings bonds, sold at par, bearing two and one-half per cent interest payable semi-annually and maturing in twelve years; (4) Postal Savings stamps, in denominations of ten cents, twenty-five cents, fifty cents, $1 and $5, bearing no interest but to be accumulated until enough have been saved to purchase a Defense Savings bond.

If extra money is put into these bonds, it is supposed, the public will not be able to indulge in so heavy a demand for goods of which there may be a scarcity.

The idea of selling the bonds at less than their face value is to avoid interest payments. Interest accumulates against maturity value. Most of the bonds will be redeemable on thirty days' notice. They will be on sale at 16,000 post offices.

The Motor Car Now Quite an Essential

NO BETTER ILLUSTRATION of the integral part the motor car has become in the community could be found than the present persistence of that vehicle in Paris.

Notwithstanding the growing scarcity of gasoline, which caused all car owners to be put under special license, cars have continued to be available for transportation and only during the last week have the occupational forces taken steps to cut down drastically the number of cars in use.

Owing to the high price of gasoline and their own financial pinch, thousands of Parisians have had their cars out of commission for months, but for all that the motor traffic kept up. Now the Nazi prefecture of police has announced that a census of cars in each district will be taken with a view to withdrawal of some of the special licenses. Ambulances, doctors' cars, delivery trucks and essential service vehicles are not to be banned.

Nothing in the many additions to modern life has been more thoroughly tied into living than the motor car.

The North Carolina, America's newest battleship, can hurl ten tons of metal twenty miles in a single broadside. That ought to assure it plenty of leeway in any ocean.

Germany wanted the Balkans as a source of food supply. But under present conditions the farmers must be having a terrible time getting in their crops.

One Baltimore street curbstoner says it's always a question in his house which will arrive first—the first mosquito or the first relative.

The hyena's "laugh" really is a growl, says a scientific item. We always knew that just being a hyena was no laughing matter.

Now someone has developed spinach-flavored ice cream. Junior stoutly maintains it isn't so. Such sacrilege is unbelievable.

Everyone is an artist at heart, is an old saying. And those penciled mustaches on billboards proves it.

The Wife-Made Man

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I never believe a man when he says that all he is, has, will be, or will ever have owes to his wife. I don't believe any woman believes him, either. Of course it may give her a little lift of pride or self-satisfaction, but she knows it is not true.

It's my idea that the man who is made by his wife is not a first-rate job. She may have done an excellent bit of assembling, but HE should have done it for himself.

Yes, I know of young fellows who rattled around here and there and never amounted to much until they were married. And then settled down and worked hard and saved their money and got somewhere in the world. . . . But ninety-nine times in a hundred time would have taken care of that reckless nonsense, and stable marriage to any half-way intelligent woman should have accomplished the same ends.

Also I have heard of alcoholics who were moved to change their habits by a good woman's insistence. And again, I think most of the credit goes to time and lost thirst and perhaps a man who drinking to forget finally forgot what he was trying to forget and stopped drinking.

But why do I believe that few women want their husbands going around boasting that they owe everything to the Little Woman?

Well, I know there are some women who enjoy such a feeling of power, but it seems to me that any normal woman wants her husband to stand on his own feet. She wants him solid and strong, with brains and initiative. Prefers a ready-made man to a home-made job. Would rather point with pride to her wisdom in picking out a good man, than to her ingenuity in making the best of a mistake in judgment.

If I'm wrong, I don't know much about human nature. . . . But I never said I did.

Counter-Espionage Against Nazis Is Under Way Here

By EDWIN C. HILL

When the Nazis began their penetration of Vienna, they connected with their supposed No. X-36 there and discussed their plans. They may never have known that it was not their trusted agent they talked to, but his brother, Count Ferdinand Czerin, a bitter foe of the Nazis and all their works.

This mistake helped the loyal Austrians to resist at the time of the murder of Dollfuss and defer their subjugation for several years.

Count Ferdinand Czerin is now in New York, heading "Austrian Action," an organization of independent Austrians which is conducting counter-espionage against the Nazis in this country and which is working with other exiled governments and organizations to make the ingested democracies highly indigestible in the German maw.

They are re-establishing in Europe the "freedom" broadcasting stations, with which they rallied the victims of the Nazi onslaught before the blitzkrieg, and they have planted on the continent about 400 hidden receiving stations. They are also organizing broadcasting for South America and other countries where public opinion may still be informed and mobilized against the world aggression of the Germans. Their fight is under the banner of democracy and they report marked successes in Austria in preparing the ground for more overt resistance in the future.

Similarly Aggressive

The free French, free Poles, Czechs and Scandinavians are similarly aggressive and skillful, working with the enemies of Nazism, and these movements, collectively, and their efforts are historically unique in their pooling of fighting resources against world tyranny.

Count Czerin's father was foreign minister of Austria from 1916 to 1918, under Franz Joseph. The count is a brilliant journalist and author, a vigorous assailant of the Nazis from the days of the beerhall Putsch of 1923. In that early day he warned his country time and again that here was the inception of a ruthless terror that would overwhelm the world unless it were checked.

He made fervent appeals to France and England for immediate drastic action against the rising Nazi power—and he was, of course, a voice crying in the wilderness. With the final Nazi seizure of his country the count escaped to London and there wrote a singularly penetrating and prophetic book called "Europe Going, Going, Gone."

He came to the United States about a year and a half ago, with his wife. He is six feet, three inches tall, weighing about 220 pounds, with his straight black hair roached back in a pompadour, vigorous and energetic and unwavering in his faith that a civilized Europe will be built on the ruins after the overthrow of the Nazis.

Believes Spirit Will Prevail

While he has no detailed plan for a European federation, such as Clarence Streit's "Union Now," he believes that means must and will be found to restore traditional political and cultural freedoms, and that any particular device for bringing this about is secondary to the fact that the spirit of each of these conquered nations still lives and will, he calmly believes, prevail in the end.

One need only recall the work of

TEST PILOT

World famed as a test pilot, W. K. (Ken) Ebel, has been named vice-president in charge of engineering of Glenn L. Martin company, one of the world's largest manufacturers of bombing planes. Ebel, as chief test pilot, was the first man to fly the China Clipper and aided in the development of her sister ships. He flight tested the Martin BM-12, first of modern dive bombers, a decade ago, and as chief engineer of the company has been responsible for the design and performance of all the modern Martin bombers.

A MODERN HARE AND TORTOISE HOOKUP

Deal for Defense Bases in Greenland Is Approved by Solons, Stewart Says

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

With the exception of ultra-isolationists (decidedly in a minority) Congress's attitude toward Uncle Sam's establishment of a virtual protectorate over Danish-controlled Greenland is very favorable. Even some of the isolationists say it's all right if it really is a purely defensive move, for they, too, support our defense program.

For instance, Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, a Republican, reasons that, although it "expands" the Monroe Doctrine, it's within its spirit, since the Doctrine commits the United States to "protection of the western hemisphere's integrity."

Indeed, the isolationistic irreconcilables themselves remark that they wouldn't object to the expansion if they believed it to be exclusively defensive. But they DON'T believe it. Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, puts it that it's a scheme to convey American war supplies half way across the Atlantic—that is, to Greenland, for transshipment in British vessels. And it has, he adds, the advantage, to the administration, of "avoiding use of the word 'convoy,' because that's unpopular."

Nevertheless generally speaking Congress likes the idea of Greenland facilities, fortifications and other conveniences for our armed forces, almost within a biscuit-toss of Germany's proclaimed maritime war zone.

Just the same, it was a queer bargain.

Not a Treaty

It wasn't entered into as a Danish-American treaty. An international treaty, to be validated, requires a two-thirds senatorial vote. Illustratively, a few years ago, the executive branch of our government negotiated a treaty with Canada for St. Lawrence waterway development, submitted it to the senate, and did get a small majority but not the necessary two-thirds; so the treaty fizzled out. Now the same thing's being attempted again, but not in the form of a bargain, to be ratified by the passage of two bills, respectively by our congress and Canada's parliament. Canada's parliament will pass ITS bill, it's a cinch. And, in our congress, a mere bill doesn't require two-thirds; a bare majority's sufficient. Probably the administration can get it.

Well, as previously remarked, this Greenland arrangement isn't a treaty either. It's a plain bargain. Only it's different from the St. Lawrence bargain, in that it doesn't have to be submitted to any legislative body whatever.

It was fixed up between State miners cannot be criticized for wanting as good wages in Raleigh as his northern brother in Monongalia. As a matter of fact, the Raleigh miner might justifiably asked for a higher rather than a lower wage rate on the ground that mining work is harder there than in Monongalia.

When these two facts collide, they are not far removed from the irresistible force meeting the immovable object. We say that without any desire to beg the question, but simply because we don't know what the answer—the fair and equitable answer—is.

What Is the Answer?

From the Morgantown, W. Va., Post

The problems of the coal industry would be simpler if there were no such things as a differential in freight rates.

The withdrawal of the southern operators from the Appalachian wage conference to enforce their demand for a maintenance of wage scale differentials merely revives an old problem that has confronted the industry ever since the fixing of wage contracts on a national basis was started.

The problem is one for which there is no yes or no answer. The southern operators have their point. Their mines are located at a greater distance from the best markets than are the northern mines. The difference in freight rates between southern and northern mines puts the southern operators at a competitive disadvantage if costs are uniform in both groups of mines. There is no escaping that hard fact.

On the other hand, it costs a miner just as much to live, say, in a southern mining settlement in Raleigh county as it does in a northern camp in Monongalia county, and on the face of things the southern the Czechs in the World war to know that an intelligently organized fighting force such as the above may be extremely effective and may deal plenty of misery to the oppressors. As Will Irwin's recent book has shown, the Czechs in America worked miracles in counter-espionage, and some of the biggest game caught by our secret service was steered into the bag by their brilliant devices.

There is one specific reason, noted by Count Czerin, incidentally, for the supreme effectiveness of these various "free peoples" in working with our information and intelligence services. This lies in the fact that there are among them many men who are old hands in sniffing their way through the dark subcellars of German Continental intrigue.

Are Experts

They are experts in this business. They speak many languages and, like Vosses, the Czech, around whom Will Irwin wrote his book, they know that German conspirators and subversionists have as many Achilles heels as a centipede, if you only know how to get at them.

So far as this country is concerned, we're just babes in arms when it comes to intrigue. We have always worn our hearts on our sleeves. It isn't a pleasant thought—this business of having to learn these dubious new techniques. But one thing is clear. In combatting sabotage, when and if we get a little more definitely into this war, we will need all the help we can get from these experienced counter-conspirators.

The Germans, in the three years before we entered the World war, knocked off about $240,000,000 worth of property and took many American lives. The busy and helpful Czechs, working quietly under their own steam, helped us put an end to that. It is reasonable to believe that we have an asset which we should not lightly value in these various last-ditch fighters for freedom who have come to our shores—Count Czerin being one of the foremost among them.

Secretary Cordell Hull and Henrik de Kauffmann, Danish minister in Washington. Cordell, of course, signed with presidential approval, but congress hasn't a word to say about the dicker, except informally.

Is It Official?

Minister de Kauffmann is described as having acted "in behalf of the king of Denmark." Now, anybody going to believe that the king of Denmark, virtually a Nazi prisoner, subscribed to that compact? He probably felt like it, but could he have had the nerve to do it, and then answer to Herr Hitler? Phooey! If not, Henrik must have signed on his own responsibility, good, unauthorized, isn't officially good for anything.

In short, it was a deal between Secretary Hull and Minister de Kauffmann, personally.

Still, we get our Greenland bases immediately on the heels of the presidential proclamation opening the Red sea and the Gulf of Aden, right up to Suez.

This wasn't treaty-work or legislation or anything except a proclamation.

We have a law barring shipment of American cargoes in American ships to belligerent foreign countries. Ah, but these shipments to Suez aren't for delivery in a belligerent country. They're for delivery in Egypt. Who gets em subsequently? Britain's forces in Africa or Greece or Yugoslavia or some other democracy? Is none of our federal. Hence that proclamation's perfectly legal. Isolationists look on it as a scandal, though.

Insidious Reasoning

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The suggestion has come from New Deal sources that opposition to the St. Lawrence seaway canal project should not be voiced at this time because of the adverse effect of such opposition on the defense program.

We can think of no more insidious reasoning than this. If the American people are to surrender their right to petition Congress simply because we are engaged in an intensive campaign of building up our national defenses, and because the president has seen fit to invest this scheme with a defense character, then we might as well abandon our form of government.

As a matter of fact, the real cause of national unity demands that we do speak up in such matters as this. All of the evidence developed with respect to this enterprise argues directly against the president's contention that it is necessary to the defense program.

Every authority who has spoken on the matter has testified that it will retard rather than aid this program, and that if completed it would leave the country more not less vulnerable to attack. That is the virtually unanimous opinion, leaving room for no other conclusion than that Mr. Roosevelt is using the war emergency to put over a pet scheme which has heretofore been rejected.

In these circumstances, the Intelligencer rejoices in such meetings as that held in Pittsburgh, at which business men from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia assembled under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce to protest approval of the agreement with Canada calling for construction of the seaway and power sites.

War Opposition Arouses Chorus, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The influences in this country, in and out of government, who want to push us further toward involvement in shooting war as fast as possible and regardless of our readiness are finding increasing difficulties which will get worse as they go further. The reason for this is that so great a majority of the people are unconvinced or in outright opposition and are becoming more vocal daily.

As a result the managers of the movement are redoubting their efforts and just now the tactics are to try to discredit any spokesman of opposition to them. This takes the form of assertions that they are traitors, affiliated with the Nazis, wishful of German victory, appeasers and worse. These choruses have reached the volume and repetition of a very chant of defamation. Many of the accusers are responsible through past apathy or official incompetence for the shocking lack and lag of American rearmament while many of their intended victims have been and still remain leaders of opinion for an undefeatable American defense.

Agree On Point

Both sides are at last happily in wholesome agreement on this latter point, but the latter group hold that we should not plunge all unready into unnecessary overseas war, but should build up a strong position in readiness and watch the progress of this foreign contest, to see what future use of our great and growing strength would be better for our country.

This opinion is being called cowardly, dishonorable and treasonable. Facts and arguments are more persuasive than names. The name callers know this but they are nearly out of telling arguments. The purpose of the epithets is not so much how to convince the country. It is to silence the men who argue on the other side.

Chief among these epithets is a new one which recently has crept so consistently into every diatribe as to suggest some concert of purpose. It is to accuse all those who are opposed to immediate involvement of invoking racial and religious prejudice and of being anti-semites.

Cruel and Unfair

This is the most ruthless, cruel and unfair of all such tactics. Since it is obviously intended to incite Jewish resentment against those who oppose immediate war, it is an obvious use of the very hateful practice it ascribes to others—to arouse racial and religious prejudice. Because in no instance of the charge against any individual or group has the assertion been accompanied by relation of one single word, act or attitude to support the indictment, such tactics become even more despicable. On that basis, the charge boils down to this, "To be against immediate war is, of itself, to be against the Jewish people." That is a doctrine as dangerous as it is untrue and unfair.

Among the people thus charged are some of our most liberal men—some who have been among the foremost champions of religious tolerance and enemies of anti-semitism in any form.

Anti-semitism in this country is a confession of a kind of caveman ignorance of American history and sociology so dark and dense as to be incredible. Here is a race that gave us our religion, some of our finest instances of traditions of ideal home and family life, examples of unbounded philanthropy, charity and civic service, and more than its share of the greatest contributions and foremost figures in every one of the sciences, arts, professions, industries and trades—a peace-loving justice-loving people.

Gloomier War News Sends Stocks Into Sharpest Tumble in Months

Steel, Motors, Other Industrials Lead in Decline

By FREDRICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, April 18. (AP)—Depressed mainly by gloomier war news, the stock market today took a third sharpest tumble since early last November.

Prices began to slide after noon as closing losses for steel, motors and other industrials ranged from more than two points.

The Associated Press average of 431 stocks fell 7.7 of a point to 13.3, a new low since the French-lapse last June and the largest lapse since April 8.

Transfers totaled 485,280 shares compared with 401,490 yesterday. In addition to the fall of Yucor and the darkening outlook for the Greeks and British in the Balkans, speculative sentiment, bankers said, was chilled by fears of mounting taxes, expanding government price controls and continued labor disputes.

Among stocks hitting new bottoms for the year were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester and United Aircraft.

In arrears in the curb were Jones Laughlin, American Gas, Humble, Fanny Farmer and American Lumber. "B" Electric Bond and shares preferred fell 1-1/4. The mover here approximated 99,000 shares versus 63,000 the day before.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, April 18. (AP)—Stocks fell sharply today, with steel, motor and other industrial shares leading the decline. The market was depressed by gloomier war news, and prices began to slide after noon as closing losses for steel, motors and other industrials ranged from more than two points.

The Associated Press average of 431 stocks fell 7.7 of a point to 13.3, a new low since the French-lapse last June and the largest lapse since April 8.

Transfers totaled 485,280 shares compared with 401,490 yesterday. In addition to the fall of Yucor and the darkening outlook for the Greeks and British in the Balkans, speculative sentiment, bankers said, was chilled by fears of mounting taxes, expanding government price controls and continued labor disputes.

Among stocks hitting new bottoms for the year were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester and United Aircraft.

In arrears in the curb were Jones Laughlin, American Gas, Humble, Fanny Farmer and American Lumber. "B" Electric Bond and shares preferred fell 1-1/4. The mover here approximated 99,000 shares versus 63,000 the day before.

The Rev. George Raymond Winters gave the invocation, the address of welcome was delivered by Cyril M. Croft, Most Excellent High Priest, who also introduced Dr. J. Hubert Winston, Ph. D. of London, England.

Dr. Winston, with quite an English accent, explained he is a professor of psychology at London university in London, England, and is touring America. When he was asked to be guest speaker tonight he thought as it was "Ladies Night" and charm be a subject of interest to all ladies, he would choose as his subject, "Charm—How To Acquire It."

Dr. Winston summed up his talk by explaining it took this eighty-two percent of industrial focus; sixty-two percent of force majeure; twenty-two percent of perspective and twenty-two percent of invigor for charm.

Albert W. Keight, one of the members of the chapter questioned Dr. Winters' one-hundred eighty-eight percent and it was not long before Keight had Dr. Winters so confused with his per cents that he had to admit it was a hoax, and that he was really Dr. Sunshine a Pittsburgh radio star who then acted as master of ceremonies for the floor show. The show included Billy Lawrence the boy wonder soprano and Major Bowes winner, the Kinder Sisters harmony trio; the Master Magician Calhoun; Dolly Deane one of the foremost toe, tap and acrobatic dancers; and Faye Parker the song stylist Jack Neal was at the piano.

Guests Receive Compact

Each of the guests received a red enamel compact, with the Royal Arch insignia in white enamel. The red and white of the chapter was also carried out in the program and table decorations. The flowers were red roses, and a wide red ribbon, divided the length of the white cloth. A turkey dinner was served. Fred P. Keyser, William H. Burke and Dr. G. Frank Malin were the committee in charge of arrangements.

The guests of the chapter were Mrs. Cyril M. Croft, Mrs. G. Frank Malin, Mrs. Fred Keyser, Mrs. William H. Burke, Mrs. George W. Brown, Miss Cathleen Diehl, Miss Dorothy O'Hara, Mrs. George E. Jordan, Mrs. Frank E. Smith, Mrs. Walter J. Eyre, Mrs. H. Wayne George, Mrs. John Morgan, Mrs. O. L. Gresh, Mrs. William H. Jenkins, Mrs. Clarence F. Shaffer, Mrs. Ralph H. "June Mad" Scores Women's Golf Association Will Hold First Luncheon Tuesday May Sixth

Annual Fort Hill Senior Class Play Is Wholesome Show

A wholesome and entertaining play was staged last night at Fort Hill high school by the senior class when "June Mad" was presented. That was the opinion of a majority of the 1,400 persons in the audience.

No tricky or subtle characterizations were involved, just plain every day actions of a group of young persons involved in the things which happen to many similar groups in real life.

The cast, being about the ages they portrayed, entered into the spirit of the theme with zest and understanding.

McGill Is Excellent

Eugene McGill, as the unconcerned young man who is interested in flying, gave a fine performance. His part was typical of many young men today who are not interested in women, dress or manners but are happy-go-lucky and adventurous.

Playing opposite him was Helen Smith, who was recently named May Queen at Fort Hill. She played a young woman just growing into womanhood who is dubious of a mother's knowledge of present-day problems.

Others in the cast who did fine work were Nadine Sensabaugh and Thelma Young, both of whom have appeared in previous productions at the school.

Thomas Graham, a newcomer with an excellent voice, did good work. Jack Carrell, Paul Long and James Kaye also excelled as did Dorothy Weaver, as the young girl in love with an elder boy portrayed by Raymond Twigg.

Oretha Dyer, Gerald Barb and Jeanne Hazelwood came through with flying colors in their parts.

Stage Crews Praised

On the other side of the picture the stage settings by Lawrence Haselbeck and crew gave the play the necessary touch of realism needed by any show.

Miss Geraldine Pritchard directed the show with the aid of Walter Boone, Miss Veronica Coleman, Kenneth L. Mowen, Edward Matill and Harold Horn. Miss Pritchard and Mr. Boone, the faculty advisors for the senior class, were presented gifts by the cast and senior class during the intermission.

Sixty-one Acres of Forest Destroyed by Three Fires in County Woods

Three forest fires burned sixty-one acres of timber yesterday in Allegany county with the largest blaze destroying fifty acres on the East Slope of Big Savage mountain along Laurel Run.

A ten acre fire near Little Orleans burned over timber and grassy sections before being extinguished. Less than an acre was affected by a fire in LaVale.

With the exception of the Big Savage fire most of the loss was scrub trees and grass lands but Urner G. Wigfield, district warden, said all such fires destroy cover for wild game.

The woods are as "dry as tinder," Wigfield said, and he warned against persons smoking and burning brush at this time.

A devotional period will be held and business transacted before the discussion begins.

The county engineer was instructed to inspect the road and make any necessary repairs.

The United States normally imports 175,000 singing canaries a year.

In the Spring, Lightly Turn to Fancy Foods

Buttered egg noodles, broiled apple rings and link sausages make this novel dish and sprinkled with zippy cheese, hot buns or biscuits with peach jam and coffee.

Filling fare is broiled cheese franks. Toast bread slices on one side, spread the untoasted sides with butter, horseradish and prepared mustard, mixed together. Cover with thin slices of cheese and franks, split half open. Toast or bake until the franks are brown and the cheese has melted. Pass dill pickles and a green salad with sections of tomatoes mixed in. For dessert, large wedges of lemon pie or apple cobblers and coffee will get a glad hand. It might be a good idea to pass mixed relishes with the franks.

Inch balls of well seasoned uncooked meat glorify macaroni and cheese, double the quantity of the meat balls, and bake together. With this goes jellied cabbage relish or fruit salad; hot biscuits, bran muffins or corn sticks. Top off with fresh rhubarb pie.

All in a scramble goes beef wiggle. The guests may want to help you make it. To serve 8, rather substantially, shred a pound of dried beef with the fingers. Brown the beef

"Sorry, I'm not going—I'll be shopping instead!"

"His speech at the luncheon is going to be about advertising, and I know just what he's going to say, I've read his book."

"He's against advertising . . . says it adds to the cost of living . . . that it misleads and deceives the public."

"Tommyrot! Dad's first car cost more than two thousand dollars. Ours cost less than half that much and it's a better car."

"Our first package of corn flakes was fifteen cents. Now you get two bigger packages for fifteen cents and they reach us fresher and crisper."

"Mother wore silk stockings only on Sundays because they cost so much. I wear them every day!"

"I think he's all wet. I wouldn't enjoy his speech. The only ad I ever read that sold me a poor bill of goods was the one about his book."

Venomous books and speeches, in which radical agitators attack advertisers, have been much in fashion these last few years. But the novelty is wearing off and interest wanes as one after another of the attackers figures prominently in the findings of the Dies Committee.

Advertising is not a sinister something to suspect. It is just a part of selling, a proved method of increasing business activity—a condition that we're always eager to see. It has introduced new luxuries and improved necessities in towns and villages at the same moment as in the great metropolitan centers. It has played a leading part in lifting home drudgery from the backs of women, putting the nation on wheels, improving diet, hygiene and appearance. By stimulating mass production it has brought down the cost of things we buy.

It has helped keep our factories busy, our people at work.

Let's cheer advertising on. Help it to give added impetus to a reviving prosperity. What helps advertising helps you.

THE GREAT MAN

True Greatness May Be Hard To Define—except When This Young Boy Is Defining It

By MARY DRAKE

I recall the first time I saw Phelim O'Reilly of Gurtcheen Glosa distinctly. I was about 19 years of age the year he returned from Rome, and as a few of the O'Reilly children were about my own age, I was naturally interested in seeing their uncle.

A tall strapping man he was that day, about 30 years of age and with hair as black as the raven's wing. He was clean-shaven then but he was not long at home when he let his beard grow, and a black heavy beard it was, about the same length and style as the beard of Owen Roe O'Neill—as we see it in the history books. He became known far and wide up and down the whole length of Gurtcheen Glosa, even to the Glen of Dundonnell and back to the stand of Thraw-An-Ore as Phelim Dhoo—which is the Gaelic for black or dark.

You'd never think he had spent the greater part of his life in college from the way he went to work on the farm. Maybe the answer is that anything to which Phelim turned his hand was easy for him, for his intelligence was of a high order. He talked to the horses and cows and even the dogs, as if they were human beings. It was rarely that he carried a whip, and I never saw him use one.

He was not long in Gurtcheen Glosa when he caught myself and his nephew, young Tim, hiding in the garden of Sally Rods so that we wouldn't have to go to school. "Scheming" it was called in those days.

He brought us over to the house and sat down and talked to us. He told us that he'd like to see us go to school for a few months more at least. He said it was very important to learn to read such things as the names on street corners in strange cities, because he said he had had to look for work in those cities when he grew up, and he said the less one could read the longer he had to walk from place to place.

Then he laughed and told us to forget all about it. Phelim Dhoo walked home with me that evening and I heard him speaking the Gaelic to my mother. They were talking about the intelligence of children and they were both laughing.

The next morning young Tim and myself went to school as if nothing had happened. Well, it didn't take long for things to happen in Gurtcheen Glosa. For when children reached the age of manhood and womanhood, they were compelled in many cases to emigrate, especially if there were more than three or four in the family. For although Gurtcheen Glosa has a nice poetic name—it means the little green meadow—there was no place in Ireland where there was more economic stress.

I recall as a youth everyone who left home for foreign lands said they'd be back home in three or four years. But hardly any of them ever came back.

The same thing had almost happened to myself. I was gone nearly 30 years when I lost my right arm in a steel mill, and when the company gave me a pension, I decided to go back to Gurtcheen Glosa, as it would be cheaper to live there, and I was still lonesome.

Phelim Dhoo was a dying man when I returned. He was almost 70 at the time. The Clan O'Reilly was gathered around his bed. There was Father John, the great missionary priest, and Mary who was a nun in Dublin, and Tim, who had become a doctor, and Eileen, who had come back from London where she had married a lawyer. From the way the clan was upset about his illness you'd think they were small children and that their father and mother were dying instead of their old uncle.

That night while we stood outside at the gate of the house, talking of the old times, Phelim Dhoo died.

"It is a great loss to Ireland, men," said Owen Heffren. "Phelim Dhoo was a great man."

"Ah, what are you talking about, Owen," said Ned Doogan. "Sure it's a fool he was all his life. There he was in Rome learning to be a priest and him with a good education and he came back and buried himself here in Gurtcheen Glosa."

He returned," said Owen, "when his brother Michael, and Michael's wife, died of the typhoid. He returned because the children were young and someone had to take care of them. Phelim Dhoo sacrificed his own career for that of the children—and he died very happy, as you can judge."

"Just the same, Owen," said Ned, "it was how he buried himself here. It was how Phelim led a useless life."

But I didn't think a man had led a useless life who could make a young boy go back to school—and laugh while he was giving the order.

He Caught Myself and Tim

and style as the beard of Owen Roe O'Neill—as we see it in the history books. He became known far and wide up and down the whole length of Gurtcheen Glosa, even to the Glen of Dundonnell and back to the stand of Thraw-An-Ore as Phelim Dhoo—which is the Gaelic for black or dark.

For although Gurtcheen Glosa has a nice poetic name—it means the little green meadow—there was no place in Ireland where there was more economic stress.

I recall as a youth everyone who left home for foreign lands said they'd be back home in three or four years. But hardly any of them ever came back.

The same thing had almost happened to myself. I was gone nearly 30 years when I lost my right arm in a steel mill, and when the company gave me a pension, I decided to go back to Gurtcheen Glosa, as it would be cheaper to live there, and I was still lonesome.

Phelim Dhoo was a dying man when I returned. He was almost 70 at the time. The Clan O'Reilly was gathered around his bed. There was Father John, the great missionary priest, and Mary who was a nun in Dublin, and Tim, who had become a doctor, and Eileen, who had come back from London where she had married a lawyer. From the way the clan was upset about his illness you'd think they were small children and that their father and mother were dying instead of their old uncle.

That night while we stood outside at the gate of the house, talking of the old times, Phelim Dhoo died.

"It is a great loss to Ireland, men," said Owen Heffren. "Phelim Dhoo was a great man."

"Ah, what are you talking about, Owen," said Ned Doogan. "Sure it's a fool he was all his life. There he was in Rome learning to be a priest and him with a good education and he came back and buried himself here in Gurtcheen Glosa."

He returned," said Owen, "when his brother Michael, and Michael's wife, died of the typhoid. He returned because the children were young and someone had to take care of them. Phelim Dhoo sacrificed his own career for that of the children—and he died very happy, as you can judge."

PATTERN 9699

Little sister will look like her own favorite story-book princess in Pattern 9699. Marian Martin has designed it with many novel, interesting details—the pointed side-front bodice sections... the front skirt panel that continues right up in a narrow panel to the very neck... the zig-zag back waist-seam. Take your choice of three sleeve styles: long and full, short and puffed or brief and flared. If you want a party style, let the sleeves and the bodice back and side-front sections be of lovely lace-edged contrast accented by tiny bows. For a more everyday version, have a collar and ric-rac trim. Panties or bloomers are included.

Pattern 9699 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10.

TRENCH SYSTEM FOR VEGETABLE GROWING

One main secret of prize-winning vegetables is to thoroughly prepare the soil in which they are to grow.

In England and other parts of Europe double digging is practiced. This means a lot more work but the results are highly effective.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, start at one end and open up a trench two feet long at a depth of one spade. Wheel this soil to the other end of the plot. Use a fork and break up the subsoil in the trench to another spade depth.

If possible, incorporate into it manure, sand, coal ashes or humus, in fact, anything which will help to improve the soil. Turn the next two feet of soil over into this trench, then leaving a second trench open. In this manner the soil is broken up to a depth of two spades but the original layer of soil is kept on the surface.

All clods should be broken up and all large stones removed. The finer the soil is made, the better the roots can grow.

Increased Water Supply Sought In Frostburg

Action Will Be Taken Monday Night as Result of Fire This Week

FROSTBURG, April 18—In response to insistent requests by many responsible citizens of Frostburg, at and following last week's fire, the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce has undertaken again to arouse public interest in and support of a move to increase the capacity of the water distribution system from the reservoir and in the community.

A preliminary meeting has been arranged for Monday night, April 21, at the Gunter hotel. At the meeting, scheduled for 7:45, various plans will be discussed, and if an advisable course of action is determined upon, a subsequent meeting of larger size will be planned.

While the public is invited to this meeting, it is more the hope of the Junior Chamber that members of the city administration, who have been invited to attend, will be able to advise a proper course of action which would meet with their approval when formally presented to the City Commissioners.

Some eighteen months ago the organization attempted to obtain recognition for the survey made by J. Paul Blundon, of Keyser, about 1932. This survey, made at the request of the mayor and council, disclosed many of the defects which now hamper water distribution in Frostburg, and suggested a number of remedies. The present discussion will probably center about a similar outline.

Ragpicker at Keyser Finds Two Boxes of Aircraft Ammunition

KEYSER, W. Va., April 18—Four boxes of aircraft machine gun ammunition were found here today on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad trash dump near Piedmont street by a ragpicker.

Davey gave some of the ammunition away, and because of their unusualness, the shells attracted attention leading to a police investigation.

Any further investigation will probably be conducted by federal authorities, it was said.

Airport's Location and Inadequacy At Charleston Blamed for Crash

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 18 (AP)—Rep. Jack Nichols (D-Okla.) said today the location and "inadequacy" of the Charleston airport probably was a "contributing factor" in the crash of a Pennsylvania Central airliner near St. Albans Wednesday.

Nichols, chairman of a Special House committee which investigates air accidents, made his statement shortly before leaving by special plane for Washington. He finished taking depositions from witnesses and the nine injured persons during the morning.

Earlier he had said the motor whose failure caused the accident would be sent to the United States Bureau of Standards for examination.

The representative, who was accompanied here by Rep. Richard Kellberg (D-Tex.), a committee member, expressed the opinion that Charleston must have a new airport if heavy plane service is to continue and said power lines near the field were a definite hazard.

Mystery Drama Is Hit at Mt. Savage

Large Audience Sees Dead Man Come to Life in 'Ghost House'

MT. SAVAGE, April 17—A large audience witnessed a dead man come to life last night in the three-act mystery drama, "Ghost House," presented in the Mt. Savage school auditorium.

The action of the play centered around "Brown Manor," a large country estate, where the will of Augustus Browne was to be read at midnight. While awaiting for the reading of the will, a group of heirs and heiresses entertained themselves by inventing weird ghosts and mysterious noises in order to scare one another into leaving the property and being excluded from the will.

In the third act a stranger appears on the scene and with the aid of an F. B. I. agent, clears up the mystery and catches the culprits. Heirs and heiresses are crestfallen when the stranger reveals himself to be Augustus Browne, who staged the event to find out how deserving his relatives were. Junior Voit, youngest member of the cast, portrayed the role of Brown.

Others in the cast were Mrs. Anna Murray, Mrs. William Lancaster, Mrs. Roy Deffenbaugh, Mrs. Agnes Crump, William Best, Rudy Vizza, John Charles Martin, Mrs. Florence Burrall, Billy Miller, Howard Sine, and DeSales McDermitt. Elementary and junior high school pupils took part in choruses between acts of the play.

Miss Agnes Anderson of the National Producing Company directed the affair, and Miss Kathleen McDermitt was accompanist.

Trials of 5 Indicted on Charges Of Payroll Padding Slated May 19

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 18 (AP)—The trials of five of nine persons indicted after a grand jury inquiry into charges of legislative payroll padding were set today for May 19 by Intermediate Judge D. Jackson Savage.

Bonds of $2,500 each were furnished by Reba M. Arnold, wife of the House of Delegates speaker; Clerk J. R. Aliff and his two assistants—E. H. Tracy and Dell White, state Democratic vice-chairman and former Boone county sheriff.

Speaker Malcolm R. Arnold was permitted to amend his bond on a previous indictment to include the new charges, returned yesterday. Court officials indicated the same procedure would be followed with regard to Delegate Lester Perry (D-Logan).

The trials of Arnold and Perry on a joint indictment, charging grand larceny and of Perry on eleven other indictments, were set for May 19 also. Those bills were returned last week.

Still to appear and give bond were Thelma Perry, sister-in-law of the delegate, Perry himself; Leslie Arnold, brother of the speaker; and June Arnold, sister-in-law of the speaker.

The speaker, clerk and the two assistants were accused of aiding and abetting June and Leslie Arnold in the grand larceny of $180 in the main indictment while the speaker and wife were charged with the grand larceny of $105. Thelma and Lester Perry were indicted for grand larceny of $150. In all there were twelve bills returned.

Billy Gilbert Featured In Chaplin Picture

Billy Gilbert, playing the important role of "Herring," one of Hynkel's chief aides in Charlie Chaplin's comedy, "The Great Dictator," now showing at the Maryland theater, is too well known to movie audiences to need much of an introduction. Born in Louisville, Ky., in 1894, of professional parents, practically his entire lifetime has been spent on the stage and in pictures.

On the New York stage he was featured in many plays and revues and came to Hollywood in one of the latter. Hal Roach immediately placed him under long term contract where he was featured in a series of comedies, after which he signed with R. K. O. for another long term period. Feeling he was being typed, he decided to free lance, and for some time has been in great demand by all the studios.

Bing Crosby, Bob Hope Star in Strand Comedy

Having been shown the brighter and more melodic side of life in the South Seas in "The Road to Singapore," moviegoers will soon be in for another mirthful excursion into the merrier parts of Africa when "Road to Zanzibar." Paramount's new comedy with music arrives today at the Strand theater.

Cavorting in the new one of operations at Zanzibar are those three funsters and songsters, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. This time Bing and Bob are a pair of carnival men barnstorming their way through Africa, trying to raise enough money to get back home. Bing thinks up the stunts and it's up to Bob to go through with them. As fearless Frazier, Bob is shot out of a cannon at a carnival show, frozen alive in a cake of ice, electrocuted and hurled from a high tower with a pair of bat wings attached to his shoulders. Bob however, balks when Bing suggests he wrestle an octopus.

But when Bing and Bob are captured in the jungle by cannibals, they are rescued by a high tower with a pair of bat wings attached to his shoulders. Bob however, balks when Bing suggests he wrestle an octopus.

Sally Payne Featured In Embassy Western

Pretty Sally Payne, who started out in her professional life as a Polaris lovely, has won fame through her portrayals of the hard-riding, fast-shooting gals of pioneer history. In "Robin Hood of the Pecos," Roy Rogers musical western which is now showing at the Embassy theater, she portrays the piquant Belle Starr, wife of Sam Starr, the pair having been colorful figures in frontier days.

Sally was launched into pictures via the beauty contest route. When she was awarded top honors in a Detroit theater she was given a free trip to Hollywood as a prize, and once there, she secured a contract. She displayed an early talent for comedy, and was used frequently in the Pete Smith shorts.

Although born in Chicago, Sally spent most of her life on a small farm not far from Detroit. She has curly red hair and large blue eyes; is five feet two inches tall and weighs a hundred and ten pounds.

'Cherokee Strip' Heads Garden Double Bill

Long Valley, California, where "Cherokee Strip" was made, the Paramount picture now at the Garden theater starring Richard Dix, is one of the few last stands of the old west. The 100-odd Hollywood cowboys brought to the location found out that they were getting pretty soft when they went up against the real thing.

With Dix in "Cherokee Strip" are Florence Rice, William Henry, Victor Jory, Andy Clyde, George E. Stone and Morris Ankrum.

Although Baby Sandy is less than three years old, she makes her fifth screen appearance as the star of Universal's comedy film, "Sandy Gets Her Man," which is also at the Garden theater with Stuart Erwin, Una Merkel, William Fraxley, Edgar Kennedy, Jack Carson, Wally Vernon and Edward Brophy.

PORTRAYS 'HERRING'

Billy Gilbert as Herring in "The Great Dictator," now showing at the Maryland theater.

Gossip Causes Scandal In Liberty Feature

Two prominent character actresses, Elizabeth Risdon and Nana Bryant, portray gossip New England spinners in Deanna Durbin's ninth film, "Nice Girl," now playing at the Liberty theater.

As the "Pessley Sisters," the Misses Risdon and Bryant are key figures in spreading the gossip that makes Deanna subject of a town scandal in "Nice Girl." The scandal results from Deanna's innocent but romantic automobile trip to New York with a young scientist played by Franchot Tone.

Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley, Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis and Anne Gwynne are other featured members of the cast. A new cartoon character is featured in "Joe Glow, the Firefly," latest "Looney Tune" cartoon now playing at the Liberty theater.

Byron's Successor To Be Named May 27

O'Connor Issues Proclamation Setting Date

Cobey Boomed for Democratic Nomination To Oppose Stewart

BALTIMORE, April 18. (P)—Mrs. William D. Byron told the Baltimore Sun tonight she was willing to withdraw from the Sixth district Democratic congressional race if William Preston Lane would accept the party's nomination to succeed her late husband.

By telephone from her home in Williamstown, Mrs. Byron told the Sun she had sent telegrams to members of the Democratic Central committees of the five counties in the district asserting that she would give Lane her "whole-hearted support" if he accepts the nomination.

Mrs. Byron said that she was aware that Lane had eliminated himself from consideration "because of my availability" but added that if she, a mother of five children, was willing to make a sacrifice and seek the office, Lane should "heed the public demand to be drafted."

Annapolis, Md., April 18. (P)—Governor O'Connor issued a formal proclamation tonight, setting Tuesday, May 27, as the date for the special Sixth congressional district election to fill a vacancy in Congress caused by the death of Rep. William D. Byron, a Democrat.

The proclamation directs the supervisors of elections of Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties—comprising the Sixth district—to place upon the ballots the names of party nominees for the congressional seat.

Republicans Name Stewart
A Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, already has been nominated by Republican State Central committees of the sixth district. The district's Democratic State Central committee will meet at 7 p. m. Saturday at Hagerstown to nominate their candidate.

The nomination of party candidates by the State Central committees of the five counties is subject to ratification by the statewide State Central committees. It has been the practice for the statewide committees to accept candidates nominated by the State Central committees in the district where a vacancy occurs.

Chief contenders for the Democratic nomination are W. Earle Cobey, Cumberland attorney, and Mrs. Katherine Byron, of Williamsport, widow of the congressman killed in a Georgia airplane crash last month.

Lane Out of Race
William Preston Lane, of Hagerstown, Democratic National committee man, has declined to become a candidate despite a move to "draft" him. Democratic party observers believe that Cobey, a law associate of Attorney General William C. Walsh, would poll more votes than Mrs. Byron.

Stewart's strength lies in Allegany and Garrett counties, Democratic spokesmen said, adding they thought Cobey would be more able than Mrs. Byron to overcome the Republican support Stewart would muster in these two counties.

Lane will be host at a dinner for the Democratic State Central committees before their meeting at the Alexander hotel tomorrow. Truman B. Cash, of Westminster, Democratic State Central committee chairman, who previously announced his committee would meet about May 1, said the meeting date would be advanced. W. David Tishman, Jr., Republican State Central committee chairman, announced his group would meet in Baltimore to ratify Stewart's nomination within ten days.

Democrats Vote 4-2 in Favor of W. Earle Cobey

Griffin and Heller Favor Ryan; Postmastership Vote Results in Tie

Meeting for the second time in thirteen days, the Democratic State Central committee of Allegany county last night failed to agree on unanimous endorsement of a candidate for the House of Representatives from the Sixth District, after a two-hour session in the Windsor hotel.

One ballot was taken and the result showed four votes for W. Earle Cobey and two votes for Edward J. Ryan. The vote was similar to that of the meeting held Sunday, April 6 in the Algonquin hotel.

Joseph H. Griffin, chairman, and Charles F. Heller cast their votes in favor of Ryan while John P. Schellhaus, Patrick J. "Derby" Stakem, Thomas E. Stakem and Bernard Hughes voted for Cobey as they did at the first meeting.

Six ballots were taken on the recommendation of a postmaster for Frostburg and the result was a deadlock with three votes each being cast for Michael Byrnes, Frostburg grocer, and William Eberly, also a grocer of the Mountain city.

Byrnes served as a member of the Frostburg city council for twelve years and played a prominent part in the campaign of Herbert R. O'Connor for governor in 1938.

The committee had hoped to endorse a candidate for the House of Representatives and a successor to Edward J. Donahue, Frostburg postmaster, who resigned recently on account of ill health.

It was announced that the six members of the committee will attend the dinner and caucus of the Democratic committees of the five Western Maryland counties, scheduled this evening at the Alexander hotel, Hagerstown, for the purpose of endorsing a candidate for the House of Representatives to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William D. Citizens of Cumberland Are Interested in Activities, H. W. Smith Says

Representatives of member agencies of the Cumberland Community Chest and members of the Chest Publicity committee met last night for a review of the 1941 campaign, and to discuss future plans for publicizing Chest and agency activities.

Emphasis was placed upon the preparation of informative and news stories for the press and radio, so the public can keep informed on agency activities. Members of the publicity committee stressed the importance of issuing regular reports and news items.

Interested in Work
"People in the city who support the Chest are interested in its activities, and because they contribute their money, are entitled to know what the agencies are doing and where Chest money is expended," H. W. Smith, president of the Community Chest said.

Members of the publicity committee assured agency heads and representatives that local newspapers and radio have expressed an interest in the activities of the agencies, and have repeatedly offered their co-operation in the preparation and publication of news articles.

It was suggested that each agency establish a news and publicity file, with a central file at the Community Chest office, so material will be available for use during the annual campaign as well as throughout the year.

A number of instances were cited which have caused criticism of agencies, because the public has not been kept properly informed and because of misinformation. Agencies agreed to co-operate with the Publicity committee, press and radio, so that activities of the Chest will be known and publicized throughout the year.

Fund Still Increasing
A financial report, completed last evening, and announced at the meeting, shows a total of $57,192.64 has been subscribed in the 1941 drive. Small contributions are still coming in by mail from various sources.

Those attending the meeting included Harold W. Smith, president of the Community Chest Board; Harvey H. Weiss, Jewish Welfare Society; Miss Jeanette Bonig, Baby Welfare Society and Associated Charities; Brigadier and Mrs. B. L. Phillips, Salvation Army; Miss Florence Anne Schlott, Girl Scouts; William H. Lewis, Central Y.M.C.A.; Mrs. Nora C. Fleming, Travelers' Aid Society; Miss Vivian Lambert, Crippled Children's League; Thomas F. Conlon, Allegany hospital; Mrs. Anne B. Everline, office secretary; F. Allan Weatherholt, Miss Margaret E. Coulahan, and Miss T. Nadine Golladay, of the publicity committee.

Miss Hartung, a member of the Notre Dame unit of the CSMC, was also awarded a $5 cash prize. She will represent Western Maryland in the archdiocesan finals at Mt. St. Mary's college, Emmitsburg, May 4.

Runners-Up Named
Second place went to Miss Pauline Smith, of the Joan of Arc unit, St. Michael's school, Frostburg; and third to Miss Jeannette Raphael, of Our Lady's Mission Workers unit, Ursuline Academy.

Other contestants were Miss Doris Gephart, of the Mary Immaculate unit, St. Mary's school, Oldtown road; and John Glick, of DeLaSalle unit, La Salle high school.

Judges included the Rev. Elmer T. Fisher, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Midland; the Rev. James Murphy, pastor of St. Mary's church, of Lonaconing; and the Rev. Francis X. Brock, S. J., of Woodstock, Md. college.

The subject of the orations was "Personal Sacrifice for Home and Foreign Missions." Treating the topic "In the light of present day conditions," all the contestants stressed the havoc created in the foreign mission field by the war with the burden of support falling on the United States. Personal sacrifice on a scale never before known was urged in order to meet the challenge this presented to the church in America.

Monsignor Vaeth Speaks
In a brief address following the contest, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Louis C. Vaeth, of Baltimore, director of the Home and Foreign Mission Society for the Propagation of the Faith, warmly praised the speakers and carried their ideas a step further.

Noting that America is frantically working to become the "arsenal of democracy," Monsignor Vaeth urged that America likewise strive to become "the arsenal of Christianity."

The speaker praised the work of the Western Maryland CSMC conference and especially lauded the leadership of Sister Marie. He also urged the large audience to attend the finals at Emmitsburg next month, announcing that the apostolic delegate to the United States will be the guest of honor and conduct a military mass. The finals, which will be broadcast, will climax the archdiocesan CSMC rally, scheduled for May 2, 3 and 4, he said.

Mullaney Presides
Matthew J. Mullaney, Cumberland attorney, presided, and in his introductory remarks suggested that the initials CSMC stood not only for Catholic Students Mission Crusade, but also for "Christ the Savior of Man's Civilization."

The idea was praised by Monsignor Vaeth, who said it would be developed as a CSMC theme.

The program included musical numbers by Antonio LaManca's orchestra; a violin solo by LaManca; and group singing by members of the conference.

Pages to the judges were Miss Mary Ryan Prendergast, Miss Marjorie Reinhard and Miss Margaret Mary Zeiler.
